BILLY SUNDAY'S XMAS MESSAGE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 23.—The Rev. Billy Sunday, the evangelist, visiting in Los Angeles with relatives in an interview with the International News Service today, sent a holiday message to the people of America.

"Get right with God—that should be the New Year's resolution of every man, woman and child in America," he said.

"You can dot every hilltop with a school, put a university in every block and a college on every corner until ignorance slinks away like a wolf to its den, but America will sink into Hell unless its purity of heart keeps pace with its brilliancy of intellect."

"America and the whole world needs to take a trip to God's bath house and get the hose turned on it," Mr. Sunday touched on feminine fashion to declare:

"Modest apparel means a high standard of morality. Immodest apparel means a low standard of morality. Women are wearing less, and getting away with it now, than ever before."

"What about disarmament?" he was asked.

"It's all right—I believe in it," replied Sunday. "I don't think the arms would come through the way they did. I stand with Californians on this Japanese question and I don't think the Japanese were square enough to do what they did."

The world's had enough of the hell of war. I'm for arbitration instead of fighting every time except when it's dealing with the Devil."

The evangelist praised Judge Landis for fining Babe Ruth, declaring:

"I'll underwrite anything Landis does."

SYNTHETIC GOLD MADE IN GERMANY

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Berlin, Dec. 23.—The statement of Prof. Fisher of England that synthetic gold has already been discovered in Germany is correct, it was learned today. One gram of the metal exists somewhere in a German laboratory.

The secret of the gold production is being carefully guarded. Only six men in the country know the process.

Synthetic gold cannot yet be made on a commercial basis, but the government is aiding in the expensive experimentation to this end. Experiments include the development of an electric vacuum furnace scale. The discovery if made commercially practicable might make possible payment of the German reparations in synthetic gold.

At 10:30 a. m. a second Solemn High Mass will be offered and the parishioners are reminded that they are expected to attend the parochial Mass since it is a well established Catholic custom to be present at more than one Mass on this great festival. SUBMARINES TO THE FORE

Britain, Unable to Abolish Them, Fights for as Few as Possible—Christmas Recess Near.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Dec. 23.—The armament conference swung toward the Christmas recess today with the much-feared submarine still the bone of contention among the various delegations.

Having already lost their fight for the total abolition of the submarine as a recognized agency of warfare, the British delegates are now expected to turn their efforts toward obtaining a substantial reduction of the tonnage allotments in undersea craft, proposed by Secretary of State Hughes in his original reduction program.

The British consider 90,000 tons of submarines for themselves and the United States, and 54,000 tons for the Japanese, far too high. At least half this figure, or 45,000 tons, with corresponding reductions for Japan and France and Italy is sufficient, the British experts believe.

SOVIETS NEAR WAR WITH FINNS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Riga, Dec. 23.—War clouds are again gathering in eastern Europe. There is a possibility that Russia may become embroiled with half a dozen nations as a result of the dispute between Moscow and Finland over Karelia.

Russia accuses the Finns of seizing Russian territory and threatening the occupation of the Murmansk Railway.

Finland has appealed to the League of Nations.

Russia has already announced that she regards Finland's appeal to the league as a hostile act.

The premier of Latvia says Finland appealed to the league in the interests of peace and has no desire to go to war.

M. Hanitzky, the soviet ambassador, declares, on the other hand, that Finland has brought war nearer by her actions.

DEBS'S PARDON BELIEVED NEAR

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Dec. 23.—The prison days of Eugene V. Debs, noted Socialist, and 196 other so-called political prisoners, are about over. This was the unanimous belief in official circles today as President Harding after a long conference with Attorney General Daugherty last night, prepared to make public the government's policy toward these war offenders and to announce his list of Christmas pardons.

It was the general opinion of those closest to the administration that Debs, now serving a ten year sentence at Atlanta for obstructing the draft, will walk from the penitentiary a free man within 24 hours after the White House announcement.

The president and the attorney general worked far into the night over the pardon cases.

There has been enormous pressure brought to bear on President Harding during the past six months for the release of Debs and the granting of general amnesty to all political prisoners. Almost equal pressure has been brought in opposition to this program. The chief opposition has been from the American Legion.

Six weeks ago the matter was discussed at a cabinet meeting, after which it was announced that the attorney general had been instructed to prepare a digest of all the cases for the consideration of the president. It was decided to include also the cases of soldiers serving sentences of violations of army regulations such as desertion after the armistice. There were 157 cases found which warranted executive clemency.

CHILD'S BODY IN SUITCASE

Fleishish Crime Disclosed in New Brunswick With Strong Clue as to Man Who Perpetrated It.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New Brunswick, N. J., Dec. 23.—Packed in a suitcase, the mutilated body of Hazel Carchersky, six years old, was found in the closet of the Hotel Albany here early today by Patrolman William Savage. The child had been missing since yesterday at 4 p. m.

The little girl lived with her mother at the Bellmore Hotel, where the mother manages. The girl's father is under indictment in connection with an attack on a child, and has been missing for some time. Mrs. Carchersky regularly left Hazel playing upon the barroom floor while she went upstairs to attend to her duties.

The last the mother saw of the child was at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon when she left her in the usual way in the barroom.

At 6 o'clock, according to the police, Hazel was seen to enter the Hotel Albany with George Garriss, who is 54 years old and lives at the hotel. He told the others at the hotel that the child was his granddaughter.

At about 7 o'clock the police said Garriss was seen to leave the Hotel Albany without the girl. He has not been seen since.

When the mother missed the girl a search was begun, ending in the discovery of the body.

Garriss was tried last May on an indictment charging him with a serious crime, but he was acquitted. He is a carpenter.

The Carchersky girl was light-haired and ruddy checked and was very pretty.

Coroner John M. Hubbard and County Physician John L. Surran will hold an autopsy.

The hotel register at the Albany contained the name of "Philip Garretson," but according to the police they are positive of the identity of the slayer. Garriss is said to be known by several names in New Brunswick and Highland Park. His son was taken into custody this afternoon. The police believe he knows the whereabouts of his father.

Mrs. Carchersky collapsed and is in a hysterical condition.

Medical examination of the child's body showed that she had been assaulted and then choked to death.

MOONSHINE FIGHT IN WISCONSIN

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 23.—All available prohibition officers have been sent to Antigo today to guard against a rumored attempt to release two alleged "moonshiners" who were arrested late yesterday in a battle in which one of their companions was killed.

More than a dozen associates of the men under arrest are reported to have escaped and it is feared they will attempt to storm the jail and release their comrades.

The arrest of the two men and the slaying of the third resulted from a battle in which 1,000 shots were fired, according to reports reaching here. The battle was fought in the woods near Antigo and centered about a shack where it is declared the moonshiners maintained headquarters. Several of the moonshiners are believed to have been wounded.

Federal officials, hearing reports that liquor was being dealt in on a large scale in the north woods, began an investigation ten days ago. While approaching the cabin where yesterday's battle occurred, it is said, the prohibition officers were fired on. The officers obtained reinforcements and after a battle, captured Joseph and Luther Tettington, brothers. When the officers entered the cabin, they found Julius Wurzer dead from bullet wounds.

MORSE FIGHTS TO KEEP BOOKS CLOSED

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Dec. 23.—The District of Columbia supreme court was to decide today whether the books and records of shipping concerns owned by Charles W. Morse, shall be examined by the federal grand jury probing charges against the New York financier. Morse has vigorously opposed examination of his books, charging that such action would be compelling him to testify against himself. He demanded immunity from prosecution if the books were given to the grand jury.

HURRIES TO SIDE OF SELF-WOUNDED FIANCE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Boston, Dec. 23.—Miss Anna Hastings, of Hartford, Conn., hastened here today to the bedside of her fiance, Felix Sanders, who is believed dying at the city hospital of a self-inflicted bullet wound. Sanders is believed to have shot himself because of despondency over his finances which he feared would delay his marriage to Miss Hastings. He held a photograph of the young woman, who is a Radcliffe senior, in his hand when he sought to end his life.

Christmas Plans BY PRESIDENT HARDING

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Dec. 23.—President Harding will spend Christmas quietly at the White House but early next week he plans to slip away from Washington for a few days' rest and golf at Pinehurst, N. C., it was learned today.

Tentative plans call for the president leaving Washington Tuesday or Wednesday with a small party and going direct to Pinehurst, returning to Washington in time for the New Year's reception at the White House.

Presents for Lace Mills Workers.

Following their Yuletide custom the U. S. Lace Curtain Mills presented each of their employees with a gift. The men receiving a small clock or a smoking set; the boys receiving each a half dozen linen handkerchiefs; the girls receiving a gold plated vanity case. Each employee also received a pound box of chocolates, all with best wishes from the firm for a Happy Yuletide and prosperous year to come.

BIGGEST RUSH AT POST OFFICE

Regular Force, Augmented by Ex-Servicemen and Unemployed, Handling More Mail Than Ever Before.

Thursday was a record breaking day in the Kingston post office when 50,800 pieces of first-class mail matter were received for outgoing mails. Up until Thursday the record for outgoing mails was 47,000 pieces, this record being made last year. Beside the 50,800 pieces of mail which were put through the automatic cancelling machine at the central post office, there were a few more pieces which were cancelled by hand.

Postmaster William C. DeWitt and Assistant Postmaster William G. Maynard have an extra force of men at work at the central office in order to keep up with the rush. Thursday was the biggest day for outgoing mail and from now on the big problem will be to handle the incoming mail.

Today mails were a little late on account of the storm and at 7 o'clock the local office was swamped with work, but by 10 o'clock the office force with coats removed and collars off, had the situation under control and things were running along smoothly.

Beside the first-class matter which will come into the local office during the next three days, there will be the usual Christmas rush of parcels which must be handled and delivered. In order to handle these a special force of men will be employed so that the matter may be delivered as far as possible by Christmas.

Postmaster DeWitt in accordance with the request sent out by the postal department, has employed ex-servicemen and unemployed men as far as possible. A number of high school boys and college boys are assisting with the deliveries.

The parcel post makes it all handled in the large basement of the central post office. Here are racks arranged according to streets.

When the parcels are received they are sent to the basement where they are sorted and placed in their proper bins for distribution. As soon as there are parcels enough for one locality to make a load they are taken out and loaded on a wagon or automobile for delivery. The routes of the carriers are so arranged that the delivery starts at a point near the post office and runs around in a circle so that when the load is delivered the empty vehicle is again near the post office. This prevents long drives with an empty wagon or car and hastens delivery.

The larger amount of matter for Christmas will be handled during today and Saturday, but as many people will celebrate Monday as Christmas, there will undoubtedly be a large amount of matter received at the local office on Sunday and Monday. This will be delivered Monday, there being one delivery on that day.

If your parcels or letters are a trifle late, remember that the post office department, equipped for normal work, is handling the biggest rush of the year in addition to the regular work. The extra men employed are by no means in proportion to the increased volume of work which they are being called upon to handle.

CHILD'S BODY IN SUITCASE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Dublin, Dec. 23.—With Dail Eireann in recess until January 3, the members are returning to their homes today for the Christmas holiday. Belief that Dail will ratify the Irish peace treaty was strengthened by the developments of the final session when Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith, chief supporters of the treaty, secured adjournment over the protests of Eamon de Valera.

ON-A-JOB, OFF-A-JOB JIM!
Making a Story
Of how Jim got on a job and why he got off it again.

From the hair-removing business, Jim went to wrinkle-removing. There were several processes which he speedily learned through the hearty assistance of the woman who did the massaging.

"I'll take my regular customers, and turn the 'gas-bags' over to you," she stated. "Some of these women come in here and expect me to listen to their troubles by the hour, as though every minute of my time wasn't spoken for days ahead. Here are the chin supports, and the other appliances to be used by the beauty-seekers when they go to bed. I'll explain how they are used, and you can elucidate on the marvelous way in which sagging chins are rebuilt, wrinkles around eyes and mouth eradicated, and so on. That will be most of your time. But in your spare minutes, I'll give you a few simple massage cases."

She proceeded to demonstrate the massage movements, and to explain the safe processes of stretching and folding the skin.

Jim was glad, however, that her prognostications came true. He was kept so busy describing the use of the eradicators that he had little time for massaging.

"There's Mrs. Snow," the masseuse called to him. "For goodness' sake, head her off before she sees me. If she starts talking, I'll have to call off work for the day."

Jim stepped forward instantly, and met the elderly woman at the entrance, asking her if he could assist her in any way.

"You are a new man around here, aren't you?" she returned. "I did want to speak to Miss Bentley, but perhaps you will do as well. I need a new chin support and some of that massage cream she got for me last month."

Jim turned to get the articles, amused at the thought of so elderly a woman, for he judged that she must be nearly sixty, thinking so much of her appearance.

She must have read his thoughts, for as he handed her the package, she said, "Young man, you haven't any idea how old I am. Will you guess?"

"Well," Jim hesitated. He didn't wish to offend her by saying sixty, and yet, "Well, you've bidden fifty good bye."

"Some time ago!" snapped the woman. "I was eighty five my last birthday. You might have guessed sixty five at the most, but not a year older. That means that I have gained twenty years in appearance. Isn't it worth while, to give a little thought to looks, and feel so much younger? A woman is as young as she looks, you know."

"You certainly surprise me," gasped Jim.

"I wouldn't fuss like this for myself, but for my husband. Most of us make fools of ourselves for the men anyway. I married a man thirty years younger than myself. He never knew how much difference there was in our ages. I never mean to tell. He is now fifty five and looks twenty. He likes the young girls, but stays by me because we are fond of each other after a fashion, and perhaps because I have some money. But if I became eighty five years old in his eyes, he'd leave me. I know he would. He couldn't stand having an old woman around."

"So, young man, that is why I waste my time with wrinkle eradicators and chin bands. And I'm willing to wager that you'll agree with me, that it is worth my while."

IN WINTER WRAPS

Now Make of Charmeuse is Being Used in Paris.

Picturesque Capes Remain in Fashion and Will Continue in Favor, Fashion Writer Says.

There are a good many charmeuse wraps for winter wear. Of course these models are warmly interlined, but they look supple and clinging as an elaborate evening mantle, writes a fashion correspondent.

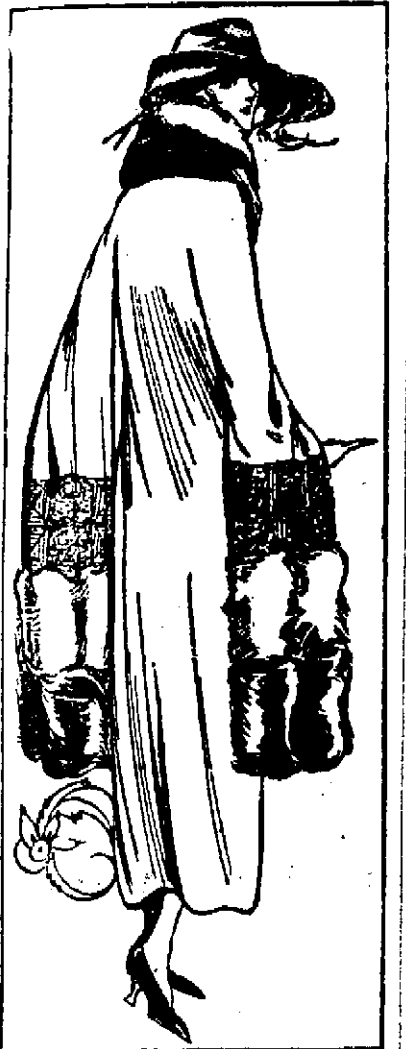

In Paris they are using a new make of charmeuse which has a woolly back and which is wonderfully graceful when arranged in long lines. It is a disconcertingly expensive material, but it wears splendidly.

One cape model, immensely attractive and original, has large and very important looking sleeves; in fact, so long and flowing were these particular sleeves that they gave a cape outline to the garment.

A pointmaker is turning out quite as many picturesque capes as shaped wraps for winter.

One of the latter is a clever mixture of black crepe marocain and gray dorey crossed with black lines. The upper part of the cape is dorey and there is a deep hem, slightly gathered, of black crepe.

The roll-over collar is immense and when the cape blows open it displays a wonderful lining in which grass-green and the new puce play important roles. All the dress experts assure us that fitted coats and wraps will completely do away with loose capes, but, as a matter of fact, the best and most exclusive women are still wearing their comfortable capes—and they will continue to wear them.

GOOD FABRICS FOR BLOUSES

Crepe de Chine and Taffeta in Models Showing Tie-Back and Tuck-In Styles.

Among the blouses are models of crepe de chine and taffeta. The crepe de chine models are choosing both tie-back and tuck-in styles. For embellishment they depend on lace and hand embroideries applied with a sense of discrimination. Venice and flit are the laces favored, sometimes used in combination and again employed alone. A tie-back overblouse is treated with flat venise motifs, the lower edge and the neck outlined with flit. The three-quarter set-in sleeves are also finished with the lace. A tie-back blouse of flesh crepe de chine is decorated with hand embroideries, with added embellishment furnished in lace outlining the neck and sleeve edges.

Fullness at the sides is introduced in another flesh color model also featuring lace medallions. A yoke effect appears in a blouse boasting a tuxedo collar, tucks and embroidered dots in combination making a pleasing trim.

Another manufacturer stresses taffeta as a fabric medium. As the name indicates, these blouses follow basque lines in overblouse handlings. The sleeves are of the kimono type, reaching to the elbow. Wool embroideries play an important part in the adornment of these numbers, novel motifs decorating the blouse proper as well as the sleeves.

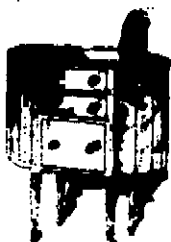

Gay colors are salient features of the taffeta blouses, the embellishment appearing in contrasting in color. An orange taffeta model is treated with embroideries carried out in violet wool, forming an outline at the low round neck. A self belt straps across the back.

Red Much Worn.
Red is the color most often seen these days at smart hotels. Red feathers trim dark hats and red suits and dresses are worn.

Placing the Responsibility.
"What have you learned at school?" was the time-honored question a young woman asked her niece yesterday. "Oh, nothing at all," responded the little first grader. "I don't know what in the world is the matter with my teacher!"—Buffalo Courier.

BUSY STREET CORNER SAFEST

Logical Reason Why There Are Few Accidents Where the Traffic is the Heaviest.

"You must have low accidents here," said a friend of Traffic Commissioner Haring, the other day, as they were passing one of the most congested corners of the city. "I'm not surprised either," he added as he saw a large touring car come suddenly to a halt less than half a foot from a passing pedestrian. The commissioner shook his head. "Where you're wrong," he replied. "Not only are there not more but there are actually less accidents here in proportion to the amount of traffic that goes by than almost any other place in New York. If you'll think a minute you'll see the reason for it, too. Where the street is more or less quiet and deserted a person crossing the road is less apt to look for approaching vehicles. Where they are always passing, however, he is always on the lookout. The theory works both ways. While the pedestrian keeps a close watch on the stream of traffic, the automobile driver also keeps tabs on the continuous flow of pedestrians in his way. On a comparatively quiet street both pedestrians and cars are exceptions and accidents are bound to occur."—New York Sun.

Fires Seven Shots at Once.

A Belgian gunsmith has manufactured a firearm in which seven barrels are contained in one. The composite tube with its cluster of parallel bores being about the size of a heavy gauge shotgun barrel. Seven 22-caliber rifle cartridges are inserted in the breech openings, and fired simultaneously by a single firing pin and hammer. The shell ejector is a removable disk with seven holes, which swings back when the lock is opened.

Fakes to Fool Editors.

When we read extraordinary stories of dogs and other animals, we may be forgiven if we often pause to wonder how such weird legends originate. A correspondent in the Observer (London) sheds some little light on the mystery. He tells us that at Cambridge a knot of undergraduates formed a club for the concoction of dog and other stories. To be supplied to a credulous press. Whenever a hit was recorded, the author was treated to a little feast and a bottle of wine was cracked in his honor. Two or three of the most successful fakes, we are informed, were duly published in the Spectator. A natural history editor is, of course, always liable to be overreached by a really artistic liar. But, fortunately, most of the tribe by some small but obvious exaggeration, fail to make their fiction acceptable.

Surely Worth Acquiring.

A close study of the methods employed by animals in teaching their young should form an object lesson for the most conscientious and industrious of human parents. A mother cat in the course of six weeks can instill more knowledge into the heads of her kittens than a dozen university professors can cram into the brain of an undergraduate in a whole year. A man gifted with the instinct of a common yellow cat could spin a pair-hander, insurance or book agent in about two seconds. Practically any variety of bird or beast is able to decide within a few hours the members of a group of humans who really like them and have their best interests at heart, something that often requires a lifetime for a man to do. If this be instinct, how can we acquire it?—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

An Old Superstition.

To break a looking glass is regarded by the superstitious as forecasting seven years of bad luck. Peacock feathers were once considered as bearers of bad luck, but now they are favorites with decorators.

CHEMICAL WARFARE.

The impression now and again conveyed that professional soldiers are more humane in their instincts than many civilians, finds another confirmation in late reports from Washington. It is said that abandonment of all chemical warfare has been recommended to the Americans of the armament conference by their advisory committee, and that the report embodying this recommendation was drawn up by General Pershing. On the other hand, the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, at its annual meeting in Baltimore, has unanimously endorsed chemical warfare. Dr. Bacon, who introduced the resolution, declaring that the prejudice against poison gas is based on ignorance, and adding: "Men whose technical training enables them to understand such matters know that the use of poison gas during war has come to stay, and that such methods are far more humane than those formerly used."

Obviously this is a prejudiced statement. America is said to lead in the production of the new and more deadly gases, but it is none the less true that they can not be confined to the actual battlefield. They are proposed and will be used for the reduction of cities necessarily occupied in the greater part by non-combatants of both sexes, and such mixed populations would have no more chance than rats on a fumigated ship, every living thing becoming the hapless victim of the diabolical cloud of death as it rolls forward. If it is humane to spare neither age nor sex in war, then the use of the far-reaching and inescapable death-blows now invented is humane.

GERMANY AS LIBERATOR.

Germany as a "buster of shackles and liberator" is a concept so new and surprising that the consequent reactions—outside of Germany—are bound to have more or less of an ironical flavor. We find a writer in the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung briefly quoted to this effect, and he is said to mention Ireland and Poland among the freedom-seeking peoples who owe their recent liberation to the beneficent labors of Germany. It is too bad that the quotation is so fragmentary. It would be highly interesting to follow this writer's train of reasoning and see how he figures it all out. Without his nimble Teutonic intellect as a guiding beacon it is impossible to penetrate the heavy mists enveloping such a subject or to catch even a glimmering of the great truth he proclaims.

To the ordinary mind it looks as if such freedom as Poland has secured is in part due to the defeat of Germany, her former oppressor, and the consequent relaxing of the German grip on Polish territory. As for Ireland, the only known effort of Germany was to land arms and stir up revolt there merely in order to stab England in the back, with the manifest purpose of counting both Ireland and England among Germany's military satellites, in case of success. Presumably the Germans regard both Ireland and Poland as shamelessly ungrateful, for neither has displayed any enthusiasm over Germany as a "liberator," or even indicated the slightest knowledge of Germany's appearance in that high-minded and unselfish role. As the outside world sees it, Germany rendered only the negative aid of permitting herself to be beaten. The view referred to above involves a complete disregard of all the known facts, and is one more reminder that there is no accounting for the tortuous windings of the Teutonic intellect.

A Washington correspondent says that Congress is looking at foreign debt collection from the standpoint of practical politics. That means, of course, that Congressmen will be guided in their attitudes toward the debt by what they think the people back home really want done. That is all there is to the phrase "practical politics." A Congressman stays in office only so long as he translates into legislation the wishes of his constituents. It is well understood in the halls of the Capitol that what the people are thinking about chiefly is the welfare of their individual businesses, and the effect thereof of Federal taxation. Every business man knows that his taxes would be reduced at least 20 per cent if foreign governments that owe us money would pay their interest at regular periods and make some contribution toward the reduction of the principal. The problem is simple enough. The American people only want what is due them, and the American Congress is going to see that they get it.

Barroughs Nature Club Notes

By ROBERTSON KEPLER CO.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper. Look for answers in this column.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. In what order do birds migrate when going back south?
2. When a bee stings, why does it always leave its sting in the flesh?
3. How can I stop the leaves of my Boston fern from turning brown at the edges?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Kindly inform me whether the bed bug is a native of this continent, and if not, where it came from? We can get no positive information as to its origin. It is "ancient and cosmopolitan," known so long that it seems reasonable to believe it was brought to this continent by travelers. It is not merely an annoying, but a dangerous pest, as it can introduce disease germs from one human body to another.

2. Are star fishes any harm? Yes, very troublesome on oyster beds, and they also attack clams. Fortunately star fishes are themselves eaten by gulls and crows, and reduced in number somewhat. There are contrivances also for brushing them off the oyster bottoms, and sometimes on small oyster beds, they can be speared.

3. Do birds have eye lashes? Not generally speaking. But there is a South American bird called Sericema somewhat resembling cranes, bustards and eagles in various ways, which has visible lashes. They give it an odd, gentle look most incongruous with its bird-of-prey look. Some editions of Webster's Unabridged show a picture. Ostriches also have eye lashes.

PLATTEKILL.

Plattekill, Dec. 22.—A splendid program has been prepared for the Christmas entertainment to be given in the school house, District No. 3, Friday evening, December 23. The exercises will commence at 8 o'clock and those who have attended entertainments given under Mrs. Nabor's supervision need no urging. Those who haven't are invited to attend and enjoy the treat in store for them.

BENJ. PETERS, HIGH MASON, DIES

Benjamin Peters, one of the best known citizens of Cortland, N. Y., died at his home in that place on Tuesday evening, of heart failure. He had been at his work as shipping clerk at the Brewster-Titchener shops as usual and at the close of the day's work he walked home apparently in the best of health. Death came to him a few minutes after he entered the house, while he was talking with members of the household. He had suffered slightly from heart trouble but his condition was not considered dangerous by himself or his friends.

Mr. Peters was born at Rosendale November 28, 1860, and was a son of the late Nelson and Elmina Peters. As a young man he was employed for a while by the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company. He removed to Cortland when eighteen years old and thereafter made his home there. In his younger days he was a woodworker, but since 1899 he was employed as shipping clerk at the foraging shops of the firm by which he was employed.

He was best known in Masonic circles in Cortland. He was raised a Master Mason in Cortlandville Lodge, No. 470, Free and accepted Masons, March 13, 1891, and became senior deacon in 1892. He was prominent in the work of the order and advanced through the chairs and served as master in 1897. In January, 1910, he became a member of Cortland Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, and a month later he was knighted in Cortland Commandery, No. 50, Knights Templar. He filled every office in the Chapter except the highest, which he declined. He regularly advanced in the Commandery until he became commander in 1915. In 1917 he was appointed grand representative of the Grand Commandery of Nebraska near the Grand Commandery of New York, and became a member of the Grand Representatives' Association of New York State. In 1914 he joined Cortland Lodge of Perfection and was orator in that body at the time of his death. He was a member of the Cortland delegation of seventy-seven who joined Central City Consistory Scottish Rite, in May, 1920, and was vice-president of the class. His death is the first among Cortland members of that class.

Mr. Peters married Miss LeFever, who predeceased him. She was a sister of the late Mrs. Charles A. Schermerhorn and the late Mrs. Moses S. Hobson, both of this city. He is survived by one brother, Melvin Peters, who resides in New Jersey.

His funeral took place from the Masonic Temple at Cortland on Thursday afternoon and was conducted by Dr. H. DeWitt DeGroot, master of Cortlandville Lodge of Masons, and the Rev. Carl W. Scovel, chaplain of the lodge. Interment was in the family plot at Rosendale this morning. The remains were accompanied to Rosendale by several personal friends and a committee of Cortlandville lodge of Masons.

Brinnier's Cutter Turns Up With First Show.

Ex-mayor William D. Brinnier again played true to form when he drove to his office this morning with a horse and cutter, the first seen on the streets this season. Although Mr. Brinnier is an experienced motorist he still loves to get behind a good horse and handle the ribbons. For years Mr. Brinnier has been the first one to venture out with a sleigh at the first snow-fall. The sound of sleigh bells as he drove through the streets reminded many people that winter really was here.

SUPERVISORS' ASSOCIATION
HOLDS ANNUAL BANQUET

The annual banquet of the Ulster County Supervisors' Association was held Thursday evening at Cuneo's Lake Katrine Inn and the ninety or more men who attended, had a most enjoyable time. Every man in the county was represented at the banquet, from some of them the supervisors being accompanied by friends as guests. The menu of the well known high order for which Mr. Cuneo is noted as serving and there was full and plenty of chicken and the other good things, with a number of extras in the culinary line. The supervisors and guests went by auto and the annual banquet came to a close about midnight, a few short speeches being made during the smoker which followed the dinner.

Much Happiness in Furs

OF ALL the practical gifts we know, fur most thoroughly expresses luxury and comfort. Besides—there is always the unmatchable luxury of furry warmth—that outdoor any amount of wind and always seems to dress one in special smartness.

We urge furs... from the wee, dainty chokers, to scarves, mufflers and entire coats. For the extremely chic—wide bandings, cuffs and collars, to be used on coats. The new prices are as interesting as the variety.

THIS SCHOOL'S PUPILS GENEROUS

The East Kingston school closed this afternoon for the holidays, to reopen on Tuesday, January 3. A splendid program of recitations, readings and music was rendered by the pupils from the various grades. The idea that "It is more blessed to give than to receive" has made an indelible impression on the pupils of this school and was proven when during the past the following donations were made to the Sacred Heart Orphan Home at West Park: 136 pounds of sugar, 2 bushels of potatoes, 15 heads of cabbage, 1 bushel of carrots, 100 carrots, 100 apples, 22 boxes of crackers and cakes, 20 cans condensed milk, 6 cans evaporated milk, 10 cans peaches, 10 cans pork and beans, 12 cans fruit, 12 cans jelly, 5 cans peas, 6 cans corn, 10 cans fish, 4 cans baking powder, 2 cans molasses, 6 cans soup, 14 packages flour, 8 packages cereal, 3 pounds of tea, 15 packages cocoa, 17 packages noodles and macaroni, 2 pumpkins, nuts, candy, oranges, books and $1.35 in money.

The pupils also undertook the Christmas seal work this year and sold 1,000 seals, selling one Health Road to Thomas P. Mooney.

In the upper grades the children exchanged presents, and the pupils in all grades received a box of candy from their teacher.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, N. Y., Dec. 23.—The Rev. C. A. Dann on Sunday morning and evening gave a report of the Anti-Saloon League National Convention which he recently attended in Washington. He presented many interesting facts and details of the gathering. At the Reformed Church the Rev. W. S. Maines occupied his morning services with a report of the same convention, he also having been a delegate.

Homer Kuhlman, Bruce Moore, William Henry Carman and Earl Rice took the second degree in the Masonic Lodge the past week.

Edward Johnson, who represents a wholesale dealer in electrical supplies in Washington, D. C. and has just recently completed a trip to the middle west, is here for several days visiting his parents.

Mrs. I. W. Millard went Saturday to visit her daughter, Mrs. William P. Marsh and family at Ridgefield Park, N. J., expecting to remain after New Year.

Miss Rita Van Gorder is assisting at D. Brodie's store on Canal street. Dr. M. P. Tyler of Barrytown, N. Y., has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. John McDowell.

The school entertainment was liberally patronized Monday and Tuesday evenings and a new sum realized toward the Easter Washington excursion. We understand that it is likely that a special train will be run from here through to the national capital.

George Mitterer has about completed his new house on Park street. Duflos Vanderby, who has pneumonia, is reported to be recovering.

Frank Lewis, who has been ill since last February, and spent seventeen weeks in the Kingston Hospital the early part of the year, left yesterday to spend the winter with his sister, Mrs. George Steigerwald, at Saville, L. I. Mr. Lewis is improving gradually, but is far from recovered fully yet, and it is hoped the change of air will prove beneficial.

We understand that W. Ewigkeit expects to retire from the tailoring business and will with Abraham Begleiter, go into the wood novelty manufacturing business in Mr. Ewigkeit's building at 64 North Main street.

Louis A. Hoornbeek has purchased the David A. Wheeler property on Market street.

Edwin Fuller, of New York, has been spending a few days in town the past week.

Mrs. E. B. Kimble of Bogota, N. J., has been visiting at the home of her father, John J. Ryan, on Park street.

Joseph F. Groppe, of the Fountain Cash Grocery, has been spending a few days in New York city.

Miss Florence Decker is one of a party of twenty-five, who will sail for Key West, Florida, where they will be employed in a new hotel that has been opened up in that city.

Mrs. Dunlop has been visiting her son, John Dunlop, of Maple avenue. John Morey of Brooklyn, is visiting relatives in Ellenville and Nanaucho.

Village Treasurer Denton Bennett upon examination by Drs. Neal and Coles, was committed to the State Hospital at Middletown Sunday. Mr. Bennett, had for some time past been acting in a way to cause concern to his friends, and it becoming known that he was not wholly responsible in business matters, his accounts as village treasurer underwent examination with the result that discrepancies were found in them, which have been satisfactorily arranged with his bondsmen. Mr. Bennett's wife has been seriously ill since last August, she being now in a Kingston hospital. This is believed to be the cause of his breakdown.

Miss Cora Wood has returned home after spending a month with friends and relatives in New York city and Stamford, Conn.

We understand Mrs. E. P. Terwilliger was taken to Kingston for treatment last week.

WHAT IS OFFERED AT THE THEATRES

What kind of a wife should a man choose, the pretty vase flower who holds up her chin to him and inspired her husband with sweet fancies, and little vain on the ground, or the woman who dies in and helps her husband fight in battles and to overcome his obstacles? St. James M. Barrie makes a quite plain which kind of love is most enduring in "What Every Woman Knows," at Kennedy's, to night and Saturday. A special Christmas card. The "Restless Sex" is also programmed.

Louis Wolke's "Too Wise Wives" at the Kingston Opera House yesterday, will be presented again tonight and Saturday.

Way Allison in "The Last Card" is showing at the Auditorium tonight, also Warner Oland in "The Yellow Arm." Saturday a Century comedy and Frank Mayo in "Di Jim."

The feature picture at the Orpheum tonight will be the "Man of Courage" with E. K. Lincoln, supported by a fine cast of players. Jack Shears and his Follies Revue, in a repertoire of clean, classy musical comedies, are other attractions. There will be a Christmas Tree contest tonight at which time valuable presents will be given away.

Unknown to Forefathers. Many of the fruits and vegetables now eaten were almost unknown to our forefathers. Not until Henry VIII's time were raspberries, strawberries or cherries grown in England.

Johnson was not arrested. The raid was made under a search warrant.

RELIGIOUS RITE HERE HELPS EUROPE'S HUNGRY HEBREWS

Wednesday morning, December 21, a party was given by Mr. Kreppel in honor of the circumcision of his eight day old son, Rabbi Kaplowitz officiating. As the result of an appeal made for the poverty-stricken of Europe, $14 was collected from those present and the sum will be sent by M. M. Salran to Rabbi Klein of New York. Rabbi Herman Beck, principal of Kingston Hebrew school and A. J. Salran were the speakers of the morning.

Henry Watterson

Henry Watterson, one of the best-known journalists in the country, who died at Jacksonville, Florida, Thursday, was one of the last of the picturesque journalists of the old school. For more than half a century his editorials, with their brilliant, original and phrasing-making composition, attracted attention through the nation. He was eighty years old and served with the Confederate Army throughout the Civil War. He served one term in Congress.

At the Colonial Theatre.

"A Small Town Idol," a six reel Mack Sennett production that had a long showing in the big moving picture houses in New York will be the feature photoplay at the Colonial Theatre tonight and Saturday afternoon and night. Besides the Princess Zuleika who answers questions asked by the ladies, will be at the theatre as well as Capt. Jack Fayette, the illusionist, and vaudeville acts. Coming next week will be "Little Lord Fauntleroy" featuring the movie queen Mary Pickford now Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks.

Joke on Magistrate.

In an East African district a doctor acts as understudy to the magistrate. Recently, when each was conscious of having broken the law by riding at night without a light, they agreed that the majesty of the law would best be vindicated by each appearing before the other. The magistrate, taking precedence, tried the doctor and fined him $5. Then the doctor tried the magistrate and fined him $20, justifying his severity by pointing out that since this was the second case that day, obviously the offense was becoming far too common.

His Explanation.

A small boy was given a dime by his mother to put in the plate at his Sunday school. When he returned in time for tea, he was eating rapidly out of a bag of sweets. "Where on earth did you get the money to buy sweets with?" asked his mother. "You gave me a dime," said he. "But that was for your Sunday school, and besides—" "Oh, that's all right, mother," he interrupted. "I met the clergyman at the door, so I got in free."

FERRYBOAT HITS MALLORY LINER

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Dec. 23.—The Jersey Central Railroad's ferryboat, Cranford today collided with the stern of the steamer Henry R. Mallory of the Mallory Line, off the Statue of Liberty, in a fog and snow storm today. Both carried passengers. The Mallory, which arrived here from Cranford, proceeded into her dock, undamaged.
The Cranford which had 125 passengers, was badly damaged. Reports said no one was injured.

Explaining Word "Barber."

Barbered word was so-called because it has barbs on it and the first meaning of a barb was a sharp point or a point with a hook on it, and it was called that because it stuck out and suggested the "points" which stuck out from a man's face and formed a "barber" beard, a name given to the ancient people, was given because the little dog had a very noticeable barb, or a curly growth of hair. The Latin word for barber was "barbator," but instead of making it "barbator" or "barbator," the French made the word "barbier" out of the root "barbe," or beard. It is the same as if we had called a barber a "bearder." A barbete, meaning a platform or certain kind of protection on a fort or a ship, as the equivalent of "little barb" or "little beard," meaning a thing which projects or sticks out from the face of another thing. And so, the word barber is related to the words barbarous, barbarian, barbarism and barbarity.

Confidence.

At the instance of her husband, an ardent lover of nature, the Woman stepped out of doors one crisp evening to enjoy the full beauty of the clear sky of midnight blue, where amidst thousands of twinkling stars, the silver crescent majestically sailed. Miss Tiny Todder, in the person of Ruth Marie, aged four, trotted along too, loath to miss any unusual spectacle. Ruth Marie has implicit confidence in her indulgent daddy, and when anything goes wrong always consoles herself with the assurance "Daddy fix it." As the Woman and her husband exclaimed upon the beauty of the moonlit world about them, little Ruth Marie broke in upon them with "What's dat?" pointing to the crescent. "That is the moon, dear," replied the Woman. Head on one side, Ruth Marie said earnestly, "Moon broke. Daddy fix it."—Exchange.

A Square Foot and a Foot Square.
There is no difference in area or quantity of surface between a foot square and a square foot, but there may be a difference in shape. A foot square must be a rectangular surface having four equal sides, each measuring one foot long. A square foot may be also a foot square, but it may be irregular in shape, say six inches wide and two feet long, or any shape so long as the area is equal to 144 square inches.

Early Days of Baseball.
At the second championship game between the Atlantics of Brooklyn and the Athletics of Philadelphia in 1896 the game was called at the end of the seventh inning on account of darkness. The score was tied at 33 runs.—Union Pacific Bulletin.

Altogether Too Frank.
When I was 14, a new scholar came to our school. He was a boy, one year my junior, and he and I fell deeply in love with each other. We exchanged love letters, and he thought that I was the sweetest girl that he ever saw. Everything was lovely until one morning I came to school with one of my eyes all red and swollen and a big sty on it. He looked at me for awhile, and suddenly exclaimed: "You homely beast!" That ended our love affair.—Chicago Journal.

Why Overcoats Are Dark Color.
Overcoats are generally of a dark color for the scientific reason that dark colors are the warmest. They absorb in the winter all the heat possible from the sun and air.

Madeira Thickly Populated.
No savage loneliness is possible in Madeira, for the island is exceptionally thickly populated for a territory without a small town—almost 500 to the square mile. There is a population of 142,268, including many negroes, who do all the hard work. The climate is delightful when dust storms don't blow across the ocean from Morocco.

Watch Your Weight.
Medical men all agree that in a great number of cases it would be of valuable assistance to them if patients could produce a weight record when going for advice. Often it is impossible for a diagnosis to be given until a patient has tested his or her weight for a certain length of time.

Setting a Broken Nose.
When the nose is broken it must be set promptly or it will heal rapidly in a disfiguring position, writes Doctor Jacques of Paris in Paris Medical. If it be left until the day following the injury it will have swollen so much and secreted so much that the bones can be set only under cocaine. If it be left for two days or more it is not only painful but difficult to set.

ARMY FOR PEACE SAYS PERSHING

New York, Dec. 23.—General Pershing today addressed the following Christmas message to the United States army.

"To the army of the United States
"Whether in peace or war, it the privilege and the duty of a soldier to uphold the glorious traditions of the past. During these times of uncertainty and difficulty which in or out of the army, the soldier must confidently and courageously do his part to hasten the era of understanding and peace. Our army stands for peace on earth, to men good will Indians Not Always Horsemen.

The Indian is more impressive on his horse than off it. Therefore near ly every artist who has been inspired to sketch the Indian has put a horse under him. So probably the artists themselves are to blame for the common impression that the horse and the red man have always been inseparable when as a matter of fact, Columbus had come and gone long before the horse had found his place in the new world. The Indian's acquaintance with the horse dates back to the visit of Cortez, Coronado and De Soto, all of whom came equipped with horses. The last two, threading their way through the new land, had many horses in their trains. Their escaping, became the nucleus of the wild herd that later comers found here.—Clarke Wissler in the American Indian Magazine.

The home of the pumpkin is believed to be America. It has been found growing wild in Mexico, and was under cultivation by the aborigines in Florida, Mexico and the West Indies when these regions were first visited by Europeans. Doctor Gray, the botanist, believed that all species of the so-called pumpkin are American. The species and varieties of this vegetable have been so confused that it is not certain. The cheese pumpkin and the sugar pumpkin are used for making a circular opening in the top of the center of which is the stem. Through this hole the seeds and pulp are removed, and the cavity filled with sliced apples, spices and sugar. The Noise Alone Will Not Win.

There is such a thing as detracting from the main issue by the noise and confusion of a noisy crowd. Folks get tired of plain in doing it. Poking your nose into the business of others is a plain noise. To merit persistent survival noise should have some merit in itself. In some towns they have ordinances against unnecessary noise. That in itself ought to be an argument against noise for noise's sake. And unless you can continually produce something that claims the patience of those who are annoyed by noise, you are no good.

Best "Get-Rich-Quick" Scheme.
There is no better guarantee to success than just plain honest-to-goodness work. It may take longer to win the public, but when you have won it you have won to stay. After an article has a definite market folks learn to depend upon it, and new articles have to earn their right to even a place in competition with the mass production of tion. It's this constant pressure of the worth-while thing that puts both you and your business on the commercial map. There are all sorts of distractions to the contrary, but there is no get-rich-quick scheme that can take the place of honest, consistent, persistent efforts.—Exchange.

DISHES OF CURRY.

Dishes of cutry are like the little girl with the curl, "when they are good they are very, very good, (if you like curry) and when they are bad they are horrid."

One thing is best borne in mind when using curry and that is to cook it with the ingredients of the dish, when possible.

In the Orient there are forty or more ways of preparing curry powder and only there do we get the perfection of the dish.

Curry is like mince meat and fruit cake—we like the kind we have been accustomed to use.

Curry of Succotash.—Take two cups each of fresh lima beans and cooked corn, or two cans of each; heat until hot and heap, after seasoning with salt, pepper and butter on a flat dish; cover with curry sauce and serve with potato croquettes, or baked mashed potatoes and chutney sauce.

Curry Sauce.—Simmer in two table-spoonfuls of butter, one large onion, finely minced, then add one tart apple, chopped; cook three minutes; then add one-half cupful of highly-seasoned vegetable stock or water and cook gently for five minutes; add another half cupful of stock and one cupful of milk. Into which one dessert spoonful of curry has been stirred; let all boil up once, then press through a sieve, pressing well to get the juices; return to the fire and thicken with a table-spoonful of butter and flour for every cupful of liquid. Stir until it thickens and add salt before serving. This makes a mild curry sauce.

Chicken Curry.—Cut up a plump young bird and fry brown in olive oil. Remove from the frying pan and place in the oven. Mix together two table-spoonfuls each of flour and curry powder, then add gradually one cupful of stock. Fry two sliced onions in the hot fat, add the prepared stock, cook five minutes, then turn in the chicken. Cover and allow to simmer fifteen minutes. Serve hot with boiled seasoned rice. If the sauce seems too thick, add more of the stock.

HURLEY.

Hurley, Dec. 22.—The Hurley correspondent has been, as is well known, an inmate of Kingston City Hospital for nearly three weeks. During his stay there, the time was very much brightened by the many tokens and remembrances which were so kindly sent to him. His grateful thanks are hereby extended to everyone. He is now at home getting strength as rapidly as possible so as to be able soon to see his old friends and to get on his job as correspondent.

The turkey supper held last week was a perfect success socially and financially. The board of supervisors came in addition to a large number of other friends so that a grand social time as well as a handsome money return for the treasury was realized.

The annual Christmas exercises will take place Friday evening, December 30. Christmas Sunday will be observed in the Hurley Church with appropriate exercises this year. Mr. French's sermon subject at the morning service will be, "All the World Gathers about a Cradle." In the evening at half-past seven there will be a special musical service entitled "The Shepherd's Story." In this, one of the shepherds who heard the angels sing on the night Christ was born, tells how he heard them and then went to Bethlehem to see the newly born child lying in a manger. Following the custom of previous years, an offering will be taken for the Near East Relief. All Hurley people and their friends are most cordially invited to join in this sacred observance of our Savior's birth.

MR. MOON.

"I heard a little creature taking the other day," said Mr. Moon, "and this little creature I'm speaking of was a little girl named Anne."

"Anne was looking at me as I peeped through some of the gray clouds, and I said: 'Hello, Anne.' 'She looked up at me and said: 'Oh, there comes Mr. Moon, through those gray clouds. Yes, he is coming right through them. Doesn't he look handsome?'"

"Of course that pleased me. Even a creature as important as the moon likes to be considered handsome. So I looked my brightest and best when I came through the cloud at last."

"Then she begged her mother to let her stay up a little longer so she could see more of me, but it seems she had already stayed up beyond her time."

"I could see, though, how she wanted to stay up longer. I have heard that it is not only children who do not want to go to bed as early as they should, but that grown-ups, too, aren't very fond of going to bed as soon as they should go!"

"To be sure, children and grown-ups must all go to bed before they want to in order to be strong and well and happy, but none of them want to go to bed I do believe."

"No, I don't believe all grown-ups want to go to bed as soon as they should, and that they find it hard, too, to make themselves go."

"I've peeped into windows when they've been reading interesting books—for you know, books are most interesting."

"You know that, eh?" Mr. Moon looked about at the stars.

"We don't know much about books," said the stars, "even though we are so bright."

"I'll tell you about books," said Mr. Moon. "And I'll tell you something of the way people feel about them."

"I'll tell you about books and put my little speech into verse!"

So Mr. Moon said:

"Books have stories in them, books have pictures, too, whatever in the world, without them would we do?"

"Now," said Mr. Moon, "the first two lines of my verse told you what books were, or what books are."

"I gave a very good description, I think, of books, not using too many words."

"I didn't want to use too many words, because I thought I should leave the words for the books."

"That was good of me, I'm sure."

"Now, the last two lines describe the way I think people feel about them, for the way I've watched people reading has made me think that."

"They've acted as though they couldn't get along without their books."

"I've seen children taking their books to some one to read to them before they went to bed, and they've held those books as if they loved them dearly."

"But I wanted to tell you about Anne, and how she begged to stay up. This is what she said to her mother, after she had already stayed up a little bit longer still:

"The Moon is lucky! That's what I say! He's not sent to bed at the end of the day!"

"I laughed when I heard that, and then I said, and I do hope she understood:

"But then, of course, it's also true, that he sleeps all day unlike girls, and boys, too!"

"I do hope she understands me when I said that, and I think she did, for I heard her say as she went off to bed, and as she was talking with her mother:

"But then, of course, it's also true, that he sleeps all day, unlike me and you!"

"And a little while later I peeped in her window and I found her fast, fast asleep, with the Dreamland King perched on the end of her bed."

Not Necessary.

A little girl wanted to plant some seeds that she found, so she took them to her grandfather to read the list. She is six years old, so he read: Lima beans, corn, salad, etc., next horseradish. She said: "Oh, grandpa, we haven't any horser. What is the use of planting that?"

PRESBYTERIANS DINE AND STUDY

The Rondout Presbyterian Church has completed arrangements for a series of Thursday evening supper and study classes to be held in connection with the prayer meetings during January, February and March. This plan has proven most successful in past years. The subjects for study are: "The Unfinished Business of the Presbyterian Church," the teacher will be Prof. Arthur Russell of School No. 2; "The How and Why of Foreign Missions," the teacher being Frank R. Foxley; and "Playing Square with Tomorrow," a class for young people in charge of John R. Monro.

The study classes will be preceded by the family suppers served by various committees in the church chapel. This plan has been successfully used for the past two winters by the church, and the congregation anticipates another winter series of social and educational success.

The price of the suppers is small and the ladies of the congregation have been divided into committees, each committee having charge of a single evening.

MAN WHO WOULD BE SANTA CLAUS

Behaving a Club Down a Chimney Was Reason for His Looking the Way He Did—He Has Now Given Up the Idea and Seeks New Field of Labor.

"Say boss can you get me up for the night," asked a bedraggled individual Wednesday night to the man on the desk at police headquarters. "Hum, h-u-m" said the man on the desk as he eyed the applicant appraisingly. "I believe bunk No. 13 is empty and you can have that for the night."

"Gee, boss" said the bedraggled one "but haven't you got one with another number, say No. 11 for instance."

"How's that?" asked the man on the desk "are you superstitious?" "No, no, no," replied the bedraggled one hurriedly "but I just got an idea I would sleep more comfortably in another bunk."

"What have you been in, a wreck?" asked the man on the desk as he surveyed the clothing of the applicant. "You see it was this way," explained the applicant, "now that Christmas is only a day or so away I thought maybe I could get a job at being Santa Claus for some rich guys."

"Still I am somewhat in the dark as to how you got that way," replied the man on the desk.

"Well in order that I would not fall down on the job in case I landed it," explained the bedraggled one "I picked out a chimney on a vacant house."

"A vacant house," interrupted the man on the desk, "I did not know there was one in the city."

"Well you see boss," explained the other, "this was an old shack that looked as though no one had lived in it in years. I found it in the outskirts as I was beating it into town. I says to myself says I now is a good chance to practice my stunt and so I got myself up on the roof and started rehearsing coming down the chimney."

"I got partway down the blame chimney when I caught the seat of my pants on a nail, and it took me over an hour to get out of that there chimney. That's why I look this way," and he glanced down at his clothes.

As he ambled away to bunk No. 11 in the city hall lockup he confided to the man on the desk, "but I have decided to give up being a Santa Claus for I find that my clothes and my constitution won't stand for it, and in the morning I am going to look me up a new plan for earning my Christmas dinner."

"Well," advised the man on the desk, "you had better be careful in laying your plans, or you may run afoul of the arm of the law and enjoy a fowl dinner at the expense of the county at 1818 Wall street."

Pastor of Little Church Around the Corner Gives Results of His Observations.

More than 95 per cent of runaway marriages are failures, said Rev. Dr. George Clark Houghton, for the last 24 years pastor of the world-famous Little Church Around the Corner in New York.

"I turn fifty couples away every month, refusing to marry them for various reasons," Doctor Houghton said. "I do not mean that the choice of the parents is always the best. Many times parents have grievances against the selection of their son or daughter that are unfounded. However, it is my observation that less than 15 out of 100 secret or hasty marriages weather the storms of the matrimonial seas. I cannot say what percentage of happy marriages result from the usual planned weddings, but it is many, many times greater than that of elopement marriages.

"Contrary to popular opinion, some of the most beautiful examples of married life are to be found in the theatrical profession. Of course, like the butcher, baker, merchant or lawyer, the theatrical folk have their disagreements that sometimes lead to the divorce courts, but some of the happiest of married couples are to be found in the profession.

"Whenever a couple comes to me I have them fill out a questionnaire, asking them such questions as: Do your parents know you are to be married on this day, in this city, and at this hour? If the parents have not been advised, I ask the couple to permit me to get in communication with them. If this is granted, the couple must wait until I hear from the parents. If permission is not granted, then I ask the couple to go elsewhere to be married by some one who has not the same kind of conscience as I have."

MATRONS ATTEND COLLEGE

Ten Married Women Enrolled as Students at Akron.

Ten married women, including Mrs. Lydia Kolbe, wife of Dr. Park R. Kolbe, president of the institution, are enrolled as students in the University of Akron, O. Another is Mrs. Louise Copp, who has a son attending the engineering college at the university and another is Mrs. Edna Kneale, the mother of four children.

Asked why she is going to college now, Mrs. Kolbe said:

"It is every woman's duty to learn how properly and economically to run her home, and that is what I am doing, as well as completing an interrupted college career." She is studying for a degree of bachelor of science in home economics. This is her second year as a university student.

"I want a college degree; I want a better foundation for my home management, and I want a useful and profitable way of spending my spare time," is the answer of Mrs. Copp. Mrs. Copp and her son can be seen going to school together almost every morning.

"No one must underestimate the value of learning. I believe in getting all of it I can," said Mrs. Mary J. Rothrock. She is attending Butcher College of Liberal Arts. Her husband is studying for a degree in medicine.

Mrs. Vera Howard Bland, formerly of Reading, Pa., is taking courses both in the engineering college and in the college of business administration. She is working for a degree in business administration, after which she expects to study in France.

Mrs. Mina Fress is completing a normal course in the teachers' college, which she began at Ohio university.

Mrs. D. E. Carson is taking a post-graduate course in the teachers' college.

COPPER SNAKE FOUND

Believed an Object of Worship in Pre-historic Times.

A copper serpent, believed to have been the object of worship by prehistoric inhabitants, has been found in a plowed field near Monk's Mount, the largest of the Cahokia group of Indian mounds near East St. Louis, Ill.

Dr. W. K. Moorehead, scientist, who is directing excavation work on the mounds, pronounced the find important. He said only three other similar serpents have been found in American mounds.

The serpent is six inches long, made of refined copper and has four coils.

MASH HARD ON FOXES

Stuff Thrown on Hillsides Made Animals Unconscious of Hunter.

Moonshine mash, thrown away in the woods, put three gray foxes in such a condition that they neither knew or cared when a hunter, John Arms of Bluefield, W. Va., approached them.

They paid no attention to him, Arms said, but staggered about and fell over each other. Arms supposed the animals had been poisoned, but upon investigation discovered a pile of mash near by upon which they had feasted.

Footlights and Curtains in New Church.

A puppet equipped with footlights, a curtain, and all modern paraphernalia of a theater, so shows may be given during the week, will be installed in the Community church, to be built in New York city soon.

Bats 2,100 Yards of Woodrow.

Two Italians once had a macabre contest, in which the winner showed away 2,100 yards of the stuff, being a quarter of a mile ahead of his rival, who had to contend with reluctance that he could not do more.

FEW WAR HEROES LISTED 'UNKNOWN'

Wonderful Work Performed by Graves' Registration Corps.

KEEP RECORD OF EVERY GRAVE

Identification Work Carried Out With Thoroughness That is Marvel of Efficiency—Number of American Dead That Have Not Been Identified Is Between 1,000 and 1,500, in Striking Contrast to Tragical Totals of Other Countries.

Amid the pomp and pageantry when a world paid homage to America's unknown soldier on Armistice day, little thought was given to the wonderful work of the army quartermaster corps in identifying thousands who fell in the great war, writes Junius B. Wood in Chicago News. The casualties of the American forces on land and sea were, roughly, 310,000. Out of that number the adjutant general's office records 77,133 as fatal and as occurring outside the borders of the United States. The "unknown" was one of these.

The cemetery division has 77,048 graves registered. Of these, 42,009 bodies have been transferred, all except a few hundred distributed to different countries in Europe, being brought to the United States. There are eight official American government cemeteries. However, there are close to 500 village burial plots in France, Belgium, Germany and other countries from which soldier dead have not been removed.

The record of the last resting place of the "unknown" before he was brought with three of his comrades to Chateau-sur-Marne and selected for the nation's honor, is a carefully guarded secret of the War department. While he probably came from one of five large American battle-front cemeteries, it is not impossible that he came from one of the 500.

May Have Been Marine. Figuring on the transportation of casualties in the different branches of the service, chances strongly favor the "unknown" having been a soldier. He might have been an officer, and there is a stronger possibility that he was a marine. The latter branch lost many in its first bitter fight in Belleau woods, and more than one grave in that cemetery is marked "Unknown American." The possibilities are smaller that he was a bluejacket from the medical corps of the marine brigade, or a soldier from some other nation's army.

The number of American dead who have not been identified is between 1,000 and 1,500. This is in striking contrast to the tragic totals of other countries, whose unidentified sons run into the hundreds of thousands. One reason for that is that at the time of the American participation the allied front was advancing and the dead usually were behind our own lines. Another reason is that the A. E. F. paid more attention to this sentimental phase of the war. I have frequently seen burial parties working under fire, digging shallow graves and carefully marking them, so that identity would not be lost when the body was removed to a permanent cemetery.

Unless the graves' registration corps has been singularly careless, the identity of the "unknown" can be limited to a much smaller field than 1,500. For every grave marked "Unknown American" a record was kept of where and when the body was found on the battle front. With such a record it would be comparatively easy to determine what division, possibly what regiment, was in action at that particular spot at that time. Its number of unknown would be a small fraction of the total for the entire expedition. The possibility of the "unknown" being a straggler separated from his unit, however, would enter.

Cemeteries in France

The A. E. F. cemeteries in Europe are:

Location	Name
Belleau Woods	Alain-Marie
Romagne Sous Montfaucon	Meuse-Argonne
Bony	Somme
Ypres on Tardenois	Ypres
Buresnes (Paris)	Buresnes
Brookwood (England)	Brookwood
Warrington (Belgium)	Flanders Field

The first five of these are known as battle front cemeteries, the one at Romagne being by far the largest.

One illustration of the thoroughness with which the identification work has been carried on is shown in the case of an aviation officer whose blazing plane fell within the enemy's lines. He was buried without identification marks, and the grave not found by the Americans until after the armistice.

A laundry mark and the tag of a Rochester (N. Y.) uniform maker was the only clue. The uniform manufacturer was given the data and requested to co-operate. He sent 300 letters to retailers. Several replied that they had sold uniforms to officers with those initials. The divisions near those cities were checked up. One dealer was in Texas near an aviation field, and by cross-checking the aviation squadrons flying over the section where the body was found the officer was identified.

The graves' registration corps was organized by Col. Charles C. Pierre, a former Episcopal rector in Philadelphia, who continued at its head until his sudden death in Tours, France, Mar. 16, 1921, three weeks after the death of his wife. Col. George H. Penrose, a nephew of the founder, succeeded him. E. E. Davis continues in charge of the detailed work.

SNAKE LIKES TREATMENT

Reptile Comes Back Each Day to Have Wound Dressed.

Boy accosts stopping at Camp Matinecock, the Queensboro boy scout camp, a short distance from Tuxedo, N. Y., are taking particular interest these days in the activities of a two-foot garter snake that was captured and liberated a few days ago after being badly injured during the encounter with the lad that brought it to camp.

The snake sustained a severe cut on the back, and the scouts, believing that the creature was going to die, brought it to Edwin A. Osborne of Richmond Hill, the camp herpetologist, who applied an antiseptic wash and let the snake go. The next day the reptile was found a short distance from camp and brought back, when a second treatment was tendered. For three days the snake has returned for its treatment, and from all indications the wound will be healed before long.

SEND MAN BY MAIL

American Lost in London Gets Back to Hotel by Mail.

Walking into a post office in the East End of London recently, a newspaper reporter, an American visitor said: "I'm lost. I want to get back to my hotel in the West End. Can you help me?"

The girl behind the counter replied: "We can send you by post."

"Post?" echoed the man in astonishment.

"It's quite simple," the girl rejoined. "Your name and address, please? You will be sent by express letter post immediately. The charge is sixpence a mile."

She "handed over" the lost tourist to a small messenger boy and the two set out arm-in-arm for the American's hotel.

The American is not the first person to be "posted" in this way. Last year the same newspaper sent by post a member of its reporting staff to a destination some miles out of London with the object of calling attention to the fact that the British postal authorities do accept human beings as "correspondence."

DEED FOR A SMALL BOY

Woman Transfers Little One to Another by Warranty Document.

A warranty deed, formally transferring ownership of a small boy from one woman to another, has been placed on record at Tampa, Fla.

The deed shows that the transaction took place last January in Hardin county, Texas. Mrs. Nettie Davis deeded her three-months-old son to Mrs. Norma L. Wilson. Mrs. Wilson recently moved to Tampa, and had the deed recorded to prove her ownership.

Courthouse officials express the opinion that the deed is illegal, in that it is unfair to the child and deprives him of the rights of heritage, as provided in papers of adoption. In the event of the death of Mrs. Wilson before the boy is of age, officials said, he would pass as a chattel and become part of the estate, if the transaction was held legal.

Early Day Farm Implement

The flail was a hand implement used in early days on the farm to thresh grain. It consisted of a short, thick club attached by a leather thong to a long wooden handle, in such a way that it could swing easily. The threshing machine has replaced this primitive implement in all advanced countries, although the flail is still used to some extent in parts of Asia and Africa. In the Middle Ages the flail made much stronger and furnished with iron spikes, was employed as a weapon of warfare. It was one of the earliest of the world's weapons to be retained in the hand during combat.

Japanese Honor Crane.

The Japanese depict many birds in their art and painting. They use the falcon, the pheasant, the crane, the stork and a host of small birds; but the crane holds an honored place, being used to convey the sense of dignity, easily understood from these few sayings. "One cry of a crane is better than a thousand chirps from a sparrow." When a public man is discovered in a graft scandal or other improper place of business, a favorite phrase used by the newspapers to describe the situation is "Like a crane on a dirt heap" or "Like the lotus in the mud." SALVATION ARMY KETTLES BOILING Great Number of Appeals and Generous Donations To Christmas Dinner Fund Promise To Give Army Chance To Make Record Here.
The Kettles are doing fine and the friends of the Salvation Army are responding generously. If it continues, this will be the most successful Christmas effort in the history of the Salvation Army in Kingston. There are many appeals for dinners and after careful investigation Adjutant Rose finds nearly every one worthy. The Salvation Army promises that none shall go hungry on Christmas day and each dinner will be enough for a large family. Each basket will contain the following: Roast pork or chicken, peas, corn, celery, potatoes, bread, milk, oranges, mince pie, plum pudding, candy, sugar, tea, coffee, butter and nuts.
It is requested that grown ups come for their own baskets and not send children. Distribution of baskets will take place after 4 p. m., Saturday.
The poor children's tree will be held Monday evening at 7:30 at the barracks on North Front street. Santa Claus will be at the Kettles on Saturday.
The Junior Class of the Kingston High School donated the sum of fifteen dollars toward the Christmas dinner and Adjutant Rose is greatly pleased with the student's gift.
